HIGH SCHOOL REPRESENTED BY BEST MAN IN HISTORY

Clearfield has a right to feel proud of the high school basketball team this year for they have played four games, against strong teams, and have won three and tied one. On Friday evening the Juniata College reserve team will be here to play the high school and the local coaches guarantee the public that one of the best games of the year will be offered. It is doubtful if Clearfield has ever represented by a better team than C. H. S. aggregation this year and the boys promise to give a good account of themselves in the struggle with the college players.

On account of the large guarantee necessary to bring the college team are the same admission price will be charged both townspeople and students, 25 cents. ## BOROUGH CLEAN-UP GANG CLEANSING THE STREETS

Yesterday afternoon the borough clean-up gang under the supervision of Street Commissioner Graham started to give the principal streets of the borough their monthly bath with the fire hose. The streets were in a horrible condition on account of the melting of the snow week before and on account of the amount of wet weather which we have had and were badly in need of the cleansing. Only Market and Second streets in the very center of the borough were cleaned yesterday but the water will be applied to most of the streets before the end of the week.

SEC. BODINE GIVES FINE ADDRESS TO THE WOMAN'S CLUB

Purpose, Methods of Operation and Accomplishments Given in Address Tuesday

Activities of Clearfield and Chamber of Commerce Have Become Well Known Throughout Eastern Part of United States.

Tuesday evening Secretary Bodine of the Chamber of Commerce addressed the Woman's club and many other residents of Clearfield on the Chamber of Commerce, giving its purpose and work covered. The talk was one of the three talks on Municipal Government given before the Woman's club at their regular meeting. Mr. Bodine's address was very interesting and presented many very interesting facts about the work of the Chamber.

Mr. Bodine stated that the modern Chamber of Commerce was the result of business men's efforts to find a means whereby they could promote municipal, civic and industrial activities in their communities without making it a political issue and keeping it free from all factional movements. The Chamber of Commerce was defined as an organization of the institution and individuals of a community, who want that community and the country as a whole to improve and are willing to help make it do so. A Chamber of Commerce operates in a community just like a business institution operates. It is incorporated, has officers and board of directors and works upon approved business methods. The plan has been approved by the greatest business interests of the United States. The big institutions and industrial corporations leading professional and business men of the United States are affiliated with Chambers of Commerce in their respective communities. These bodies are nearly all united in a central body with headquarters at Washington, D. C., known as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The national governing body employs the referendum on important public questions which are submitted to these bodies to ascertain the opinions of the business interests of the country. The modern Chamber of Commerce is as a sound business foundation and is as well established as other important business institutions.

There is quite a difference in the methods of operation in the Chambers of Commerce in different cities. Each has a plan of its own, but the aims and purposes are practically the same. Only the methods of working differ. Some cities stress the industrial end of the work and other the civic end. Still others the sociological, while other cities may be interested more in municipal work. Some cities have even gone so far as to establish a form of training for citizenship. Mr. Bodine described the methods of operation in some cities whereby the young men and women are trained for citizenship. A careful study is made of the industrial and business institutions of the town, courses in government and economics have been established in the High Schools; juvenile clubs have been organized and there has been most active cooperation between the commercial organizations and the school authorities, aiming to produce more intelligent citizens when the age of twenty-one is reached. The purpose has been to increase the knowledge of public affairs that the future voter will understand his great responsibility. It was pointed out that good citizenship does not mean merely to pay taxes and keep out of jail, but that we owe a greater debt to the community in which we live. We should strive to transmit our city much greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us. The work of a Chamber of Commerce is absolutely unselfish. The men who are in it give liberally of their time, brains, energy and money without asking the question "What do I get out of it?" They are not in it for glory but to help the city itself.

The working organization and activities of the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce were described by Mr. Bodine. The functions and duties of the various committees were taken up in detail and much of the work that is now under way by the local organization was described. In conclusion it was shown there are three principal functions of a Chamber of Commerce. One, to promote civic activity. Two, to secure creditably publicity. Three, to increase the city's industry. These functions are carried in the order of their importance, the first two will always guarantee the last. That is to say, if a city makes itself a beautiful and comfortable place in which to live, providing itself with an ample food supply at reasonable cost, parks and playgrounds for the people who work and need that form of recreation most, good comfortable houses at reasonable rent, pure water at reasonable cost, observes and enforces the health and sanitary laws as set forth by the state and city health departments, and gives all of this proper publicity (it may be rightly termed creditably publicity), the manufacturer upon learning these facts will seek the city and the city which is economical in which to live and has favorable conditions for labor and the best facilities for manufacturing and marketing produce of all kinds, will find it easiest to interest the prospective manufacturer. The important natural advantages of a community should be used to the utmost to promote that community's industrial prosperity. However, the city which improves its civic and municipal features in cost and lets that fact be known in the city the modern manufacturer is seeking and a community in which he will eventually locate permanently.

Clearfield was described as an ideal location for manufacturing enterprises and the city is rapidly coming to the front along civic lines Clearfield is naturally a very beautiful community and has wonderful possibilities. The activities of Clearfield and its Chamber of Commerce have come to be very well known throughout the East, but we should continue to improve and strive to maintain the lead which we have won over most communities of like size.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS AWARDED LETTERS AT MASS MEETING

Prof. Zerfloss makes Presentation Speech—Five Seniors Given Gold Footballs

Seventeen Gridiron Warriors Receive Letters This Morning—Team Highly Praised by Superintendent Zerfloss for Good Work and for Clean Games.

This morning at a mass meeting in the Assembly hall seventeen members of the 1915 football squad of the High school were awarded their letters, having played in the required number of games. Five of the seven senior members of the squad were also awarded gold footballs as they have earned their letter in two consecutive seasons on the gridiron.

Mr. Zerfloss, superintendent of the schools made an interesting address before the presentation speech. He highly complimented the players in the manner in which they played in upholding the good name of the school, and also their ability for playing the game. He told of the improvement in athletics since the sports have come under the supervision of the school board.

The people of this town do not support football because of their love of the sport but because they appreciate the efforts of the students and also the clean game they put up and observe the rules. Several years ago the team was composed of eleven men picked merely for their popularity with their fellow students and out for their ability to play football. The game has become a means and not an end as it was in those days. Athletics in general have improved since the school authorities have taken charge. Better schedules have been made out and a winning team has been turned out every year which greatly aids in securing the support of the people as the public will not support a losing team.

Last year a squad of thirty five or forty men turned out for every practice and from this large number the best players were put on the varsity. One of the hardest schedules in the history of the school was played and Clearfield came out victorious in the majority of games.

The seniors who were awarded the gold footballs were Captain Patchin, Mitchell, Lynn, Phillips and West. Those awarded their C. were: Patchin, Mitchell, Lynn, Phillips, West, Rishel and H. Stewart, Bower, Martin, Ready, Leslie Thompson, Shaw, Cochran, Torrence, Pooler, Jones and Austin.

NON-SUSPENSION POLICY ADOPTED BY BIG MAJORITY

Miners Will Not Walk Out if Agreement is Not Reached When Contract Expires

Decision of Miners Cheered—Officials Express Opinion That Decision Will Be Approved Generally by Miners and Employers.

Indianapolis, Ind., January 27.—After a long discussion in convention today, the delegates representing nearly 400,000 union coal miners in the United States decided that in the event new wage scales have not been negotiated by the time existing contracts expire, they will remain at work so long as there is hope of drawing up agreements. This decision of the United Mine Workers of America was made by an overwhelming majority and endorses the policy of President John P. White who has been advocating such a step for two years.

The decision of the miners was cheered. After the non-suspension policy was adopted, following some bitter opposition, the officials of the union, expressed the belief that the public and organized labor generally will approve the action of the men to cause as little interference with present industrial conditions as they possibly can in seeking a wage increase. Most of those who spoke for the non-suspension policy were optimistic with regard to the ability of the union to negotiate new agreements, none of them looking for a strike.

The soft coal miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania will go into conference with the operators of these states at Mobile, Ala., in February in an endeavor to arrange an interstate agreement to take the place of the separate state wage scales that expire March 31.

The demands the coal diggers will make, while not yet formulated, will it is learned, be along the lines of those made two years ago, with the exception that a ten per cent. increase for soft coal miners will be asked and probably 20 per cent. for bituminous men who are paid by the day. The scale adopted in that conference will be the basis on which agreements in the bituminous fields in other parts of the country will be negotiated.

The anthracite men are asking for a 20 per cent. increase in wages, complete recognition of the union and a two years agreement. Information has reached Indianapolis that the hard coal operators may ask for a five year agreement, but the report lacks confirmation.

The anthracite men are almost unanimous for continuing at work after March 31, provided no agreement has been reached and there are prospects of making one. Most of those who opposed the non-suspension policy came from Indiana and Illinois fields, though two of the strongest speeches in favor of Mr. White's recommendation were made by Frank Harrington, president of the Illinois miners, and Frank J. Hayes, international vice president who also comes from Illinois.

A proposition to reduce the size of the international convention recommended by President White, provoked so much opposition that it was referred to the committee on constitution. A plan to change the representation from one delegate for every 100 members to one delegate for every 1,000 and thus reduce the size of the conventions from between 1,200 and 1,500 delegates to about 400, was recently defeated in a referendum vote. It was asserted that the vote had not been properly tabulated and President White urged the convention to adopt the new plan. Declarations were made on the floor of the convention that the proposed change was not in the interest of the "man with the pick" but was more for the benefit of the officers of the union, by giving them better control of a small body of men. The debate was lively and President White felt himself called upon to deliver a speech, disavowing any ulterior motive.

When the convention adjourned until tomorrow it was in the midst of a discussion over the alleged bribery case in the southwest territory where a former district president, and a former district secretary were accused of "selling out" the organization. Counter-suits in the case are now in the civil courts of Kansas. The committee on officers' reports approved the action taken by President White who has urged the delegates to take the matter into court for resolution.

Several motions to change of the case in various ways were voted down. It will again be taken up tomorrow.

The scale committee of last night and considered the wage draft and other subjects brought to its attention by local unions. The committee will discard all the resolutions presented for action and will bring in a substitute covering all the things it will recommend for submission to the anthracite and bituminous coal operators.

The convention will not get through its work until next week and in consequence the soft coal conference at Mobile has been deferred until February 8.

The sub-scale committee last night submitted to the full committee a draft of demands to be made upon the anthracite and bituminous operators. The anthracite demands were approved without changing anything in the list formulated at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., last fall, and the committee agreed upon a 10 per cent. increase for bituminous miners on the mine run basis and 20 per cent. advance for the man paid by the day in the same fields.

The demands were not made public but will be presented to the convention about the day before it is ready to adjourn.

G. W. JOHNSON JR. DIED AT AN EARLY HOUR THIS MORNING

Deceased was One of Clearfield's Most Popular and Best Known Young Men

Endocarditis Developed From Grippe and Was the Cause of His Death—Died in Allegheny General Hospital at Six O'clock This Morning.

The community was shocked this morning to hear of the untimely death of one of its most popular and best known young men in the person of George W. Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson of Second street.

The deceased was taken sick about a week ago with the grippe while in Pittsburgh. His condition became more serious about Monday afternoon and on Tuesday evening he was taken to the Allegheny general hospital where he died this morning at six o'clock from endocarditis, which developed from the grippe.

Tuesday evening word came to his father to come to Pittsburgh and about a half hour later for the entire family to come as his condition was serious and the doctors had given up all hope of his recovery. His father and mother and sister Edna left yesterday morning on the 5:10 Pennsylvania train for Pittsburgh and arrived just a few hours before the young man died.

G. W. Johnson Jr., was born in Clearfield February 22, 1893 and was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson of South Second street. Up until a few months ago he lived in Clearfield, being employed by his father in the plumbing business. Leaving Clearfield he went to Pittsburgh where he was employed by the Mechanic Supply company.

The deceased is survived by his father and mother, three sisters, Edna and Margaret at home and Mrs. George Kendrick, of Sewickley, two brothers, Edgar, of New York city and Hursh, of Andros, Canada. Arrangements for the funeral services have not been completed.

PORK VERSUS FEDERAL ECONOMY

Congressional "pork" and economy in national expenditures are two utterly incompatible factors, and the party which makes itself responsible for or is even a passive participant in the passage of so mischievous a measure as the Shackleford "good roads" bill will find it extremely difficult to reconcile its actions with its professions. There may have been a time in the early history of the country when the development of its communications in vast unsettled areas was beyond the power and resources of the states and territories and when federal aid was justified. But that period has long since passed; and even if there were no other objection to a distribution of federal funds to the states for road building, the present moment is peculiarly inopportune for the addition of $25,000,000 or any other large sum to the federal budget for a project so redolent of the pork barrel.

The congress is facing the necessity of finding new sources of revenue to wipe out an existing deficit and to provide vast sums for the urgent needs of national defense. There is as yet no substantial agreement as to where the money is to come from. It has been agreed that the surrender of the duty on sugar was a blunder of the Democratic tariff revisers, accomplishing contributing to the embarrassment of the national finances and bringing a great southern industry to the brink of ruin. That blunder is to be retrieved, but all the other suggestions of the President for additional sources of revenue have been practically set aside as impracticable or inexpedient.

In the face of this situation it is worse than folly to propose the distribution of $25,000,000 to the states for "good roads." Aside from the fact that such a policy would be an invasion of the proper function of the states and would establish a precedent bound to return to plague the government, the distribution would be certain to be attended by all the worse abuses of the "pork" system. Happily the senate can be counted upon to send a bill of this character to the limbo of all scotched buncombe legislation. If the Democrats in the house imagine that they have gained anything by this bid to the cupidity of certain of the poorer states, they are likely to find out their mistake.

Clayton, Ga., Jan. 27.—Will Brown, a negro convicted of wife murder, is to be hanged in the Rabun county jail here tomorrow, notwithstanding the fact that the trial judge, on members of the jury, the prosecuting attorney, and many leading citizens have asked that the death sentence be commuted to one of life imprisonment. Governor Harris, on the recommendation of the prison commission, has declined commutation on the ground that the trial court and the supreme court both refused a new trial and that the record of the convicted negro shows him dangerous.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"Back of the troubled areas of Northern Africa, where war and agitation for war has been engendered anew by the contagion of the world-struggle, there lies a treeless country, inhabited by a people, the mask-like Tuaregs, fascinating for the mystery and exclusiveness with which they have surrounded their life. These people, natives of the Middle Desert, are the allies of no one, neither of the Germanic Bund nor of the Entente, but wage a futile guerrilla warfare with all who invade the inhospitable Sahara sands of their domain. They are the buccannery of the trackless sand, forever at war with all civilization and its restraints," begins a war geography primer just issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington, which describes the people now warring with the African armies of Italy for the maintenance of their power to levy tribute upon the ancient trans-Saharan caravan routes.

"Masked Tuaregs are Berber nomads, a white desert people, whose country is probably the most inaccessible on earth. Even before Egyptian civilization began to leave coherent records of its history, the Tuaregs, or Berbers, were long established along Northern Africa. The great Arab invasion of the seventh century displaced them from their possessions upon the seacoast and drove them into the savage area of the interior desert, where, with their hands raised against all who come into their pathless country, they have maintained themselves through the intervening centuries, despite lack of water, sand-storms, and lack of farming land, requisitioning by force of arms from the Arabs and Egyptians, to the north and east, and from the blacks of the Sudan, in the south, such necessities and luxuries as their cheerless portion of mother earth can not supply them.

"There are five main tribes in the Tuareg confederation, and they inhabit the desert from Tuat to Timbuktu and from Fezzan to Zinder. Their homes are reared in the heart of arid wastes, where vast solitudes, unnatural heats, and unmarked distances shroud everything in uncanny mystery. They are masters of an area half that of the United States in extent. Of this 1,500,000 square miles of territory, scarcely 5,000 acres or less than the area of New York City is cultivated land. This scanty farmland is only maintained by an enduring struggle with the drifting sands. These fierce adventurers who have forced the great desolation to yield them a support number 300,000, or more, according to estimate; and they have made themselves feared by the natives from the Mediterranean to the jungles of Central Africa.

"The Tuaregs wear the end of their turban cloth drawn around the face, allowing nothing but the eyes to be seen. It is worn for the purpose of protecting the throat and lungs from the cutting blasts of fine desert sand, and, also, probably, as an element enhancing the mystery of their life, for they seldom or never remove these masks, whether roving the desert or visiting in the cities on the coast. Due to these cloths, they are called Masked Tuaregs, while the Arabs call them 'People of the Veil.' The masks are dark blue and white, the former being worn by Tuareg nobles and the latter by the serfs and slaves.

"Some centers for trade, Tuareg towns, are situated in the Middle

Desert. These are Wargla, Tinbuktu, Ghat, Ghadames, Murzak and In-salah. However, the Tuareg has little cares for trade and industry. He is a fearless, enduring, hard-fighting adventurer along the merchandise trails that cross the desert. Two important trails leave Tripoli, on the coast, and traverse 3,000 miles of sands and barren wastes to the Sudan, where rich cargoes of skins, gold, ivory, and other interior African products are loaded upon camels and brought northward. Sometimes, a single caravan consists of thousands of camels and merchandise to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars. When passing through the Tuareg country, the leaders of such caravans have had to pay tribute to the chieftains by the way for safe escort or run the risk of losing all their goods.

"From Morocco to Tripoli, the relentless ferocity, the cunning, and the daring of the Tuareg is mingled in all the traditions unpleasant to the more peaceful natives along the coast cities and thrive upon the tribute they are able to exact. Still, the time is coming when the long caravan will no longer cross the desert, but the Sudan products will be carried by railway to Port Sudan or down the Congo River for European ports.

"The Tuaregs are of the purest Berber stock, the noble families unmixed with other blood, and, in their own language, they call themselves 'the noble people.' Nominally, they are Mohammedans, and some of their number compose the most intolerant and warlike sect in Islam, the Senusi sect. Their hatred for the foreigner is greater even than that bred by their religion, and, so, they are more exclusive than ever were the Chinese or Japanese. Their social organization divides them into five classes, the nobles, the priests, the serfs, the cross-breeds and the slaves. All of these classes have this in common—they form together the Tuareg family, which holds itself superior to all the other peoples of the earth."

Ripening Strawberries and Blooming Flowers vs, BLIZZARDS

"Today while the North and West are freezing, while millions are suffering, while railroads are blocked by great snowdrifts and many schools are closed because of the weather, there are signs of spring throughout FLORIDA and the coast country, the trees are budding forth, the flowers are blooming, the birds are mating, and men and beast are free from the suffering of the death-dealing blizzards. In this climatic advantage the South has an asset worth billions in its material developments. This climate lessens the cost of living, lessens the cost of livestock raising, and makes possible outdoor work 12 months in the year. It gives to the fruit growers and the farmers productive power at least twice as great as that of their competitors in less favored regions.

To the young and the old; to the hustling, active man who wants to join in the development of this the most richly endowed country on the earth; to the middle-aged or aged man or woman who wants to spend the later years of life away from the blizzards and the killing cold of the North and West, the South bids a hearty welcome, with the assurance that the experience of the tens of thousand who have already come is a guarantee that millions of others could come and find health and happiness and prosperity here."

OKLAHOMA TO USE ARMORED CARS IN HUNTING BANDITS

Gov. Hove Sides Several Inches Higher Than Regular Automobiles

Okla. City, Jan. 27.—(By United Press.)—Jesse James and all that motley crew of picturesque co-bandits who have buried in scattered mounds throughout the wild west must be turning over and over in their graves since the 1913-14-15 revival of stagecoach and express robberies has developed along scientific, efficient and up-to-date lines. County officers in Oklahoma are going to employ armored motor cars in hunting bank robbers and train bandits hereafter. There has been an unusual number of these holdups this winter and the offenders usually escaped because their horses were superior to those ridden by the officers. Orders have been placed with a local firm for a number of special steel bodies for motor chassis. The sides are several inches higher than those of the ordinary body and are to be pierced by rifle loopholes. Behind the windshield is to be a steel plate that can be raised or lowered.

SEC. BODINE GIVES FINE ADDRESS TO THE WOMAN'S CLUB

Purpose, Methods of Operation and Accomplishments Given in Address Tuesday

Activities of Clearfield and Chamber of Commerce Have Become Well Known Throughout Eastern Part of United States.

Tuesday evening Secretary Bodine of the Chamber of Commerce addressed the Woman's club and many other residents of Clearfield on the Chamber of Commerce, giving its purpose and work covered. The talk was one of the three talks on Municipal Government given before the Woman's club at their regular meeting. Mr. Bodine's address was very interesting and presented many very interesting facts about the work of the Chamber. Mr. Bodine stated that the modern Chamber of Commerce was the result of business men's efforts to find a means whereby they could promote municipal, civic and industrial activities in their communities without making it a political issue and keeping it free from all factional movements. The Chamber of Commerce was defined as an organization of the institution and individuals of a community, who want that community and the country as a whole to improve and are willing to help make it do so. A Chamber of Commerce operates in a community just like a business institution operates. It is incorporated, has officers and board of directors and works upon approved business methods. The plan has been approved by the greatest business interests of the United States. The big institutions and industrial corporations leading professional and business men of the United States are affiliated with Chambers of Commerce in their respective communities. These bodies are nearly all united in a central body with headquarters at Washington, D. C., known as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The national governing body employs the referendum on important public questions which are submitted to these bodies to ascertain the opinions of the business interests of the country. The modern Chamber of Commerce is a sound business foundation and is as well established as other important business institutions.

There is quite a difference in the methods of operation in the Chambers of Commerce in different cities. Each has a plan of its own, but the aims and purposes are practically the same. Only the methods of working differ. Some cities stress the industrial end of the work and other the civic end. Still others the sociological, while other cities may be interested more in municipal work. Some cities have even gone so far as to establish a form of training for citizenship.

Mr. Bodine described the methods of operation in some cities whereby the young men and women are trained for citizenship. A careful study is made of the industrial and business institutions of the town, courses in government and economics have been established in the High Schools; juvenile clubs have been organized and there has been most active cooperation between the commercial organizations and the school authorities, aiming to produce more intelligent citizens when the age of twenty-one is reached. The purpose has been to increase the knowledge of public affairs that the future voter will understand his great responsibility. It was pointed out that good citizenship does not mean merely to pay taxes and keep out of jail, but that we owe a greater debt to the community in which we live. We should strive to transmit our city much greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us. The work of a Chamber of Commerce is absolutely unselfish. The men who are in it give liberally of their time, brains, energy and money without asking the question "What do I get out of it?" They are not in it for glory but to help the city itself.

The working organization and activities of the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce were described by Mr. Bodine. The functions and duties of the various committees were taken up in detail and much of the work that is now under way by the local organization was described. In conclusion it was shown there are three principal functions of a Chamber of Commerce. One, to promote civic activity. Two, to secure creditable publicity. Three, to increase the city's industry. These functions are carried in the order of their importance, the first two will always guarantee the last. That is to say, if a city makes itself a beautiful and comfortable place in which to live, providing itself with an ample food supply at reasonable cost, parks and playgrounds for the people who work and need that form of recreation most, good comfortable houses at reasonable rent, pure water at reasonable cost, observes and enforces the health and sanitary laws as set forth by the state and city health departments, and gives all of this proper publicity (it may be rightly termed creditable publicity), the manufacturer upon learning these facts will seek the city and the city which is economical in which to live and has favorable conditions for labor and the best facilities for manufacturing and marketing produce of all kinds, will find it easiest to interest the prospective manufacturer. The important natural advantages of a community should be used to the utmost to promote that community's industrial prosperity. However, the city which improves its civic and municipal features in cost and lets that fact be known in the city the modern manufacturer is seeking and a community in which he will eventually locate permanently.

Clearfield was described as an ideal location for manufacturing enterprises and the city is rapidly coming to the front along civic lines Clearfield is naturally a very beautiful community and has wonderful possibilities. The activities of Clearfield and its Chamber of Commerce have come to be very well known throughout the East, but we should continue to improve and strive to maintain the lead which we have won over most communities of like size.

NON-SUSPENSION POLICY ADOPTED BY BIG MAJORITY

Miners Will Not Walk Out if Agreement is Not Reached When Contract Expires

Decision of Miners Cheered—Officials Express Opinion That Decision Will Be Approved Generally by Miners and Employers.

Indianapolis, Ind., January 27.—After a long discussion in convention today, the delegates representing nearly 400,000 union coal miners in the United States decided that in the event new wage scales have not been negotiated by the time existing contracts expire, they will remain at work so long as there is hope of drawing up agreements. This decision of the United Mine Workers of America was made by an overwhelming majority and endorses the policy of President John P. White who has been advocating such a step for two years.

The decision of the miners was cheered. After the non-suspension policy was adopted, following some bitter opposition, the officials of the union, expressed the belief that the public and organized labor generally will approve the action of the men to cause as little interference with present industrial conditions as they possibly can in seeking a wage increase. Most of those who spoke for the non-suspension policy were optimistic with regard to the ability of the union to negotiate new agreements, none of them looking for a strike.

The soft coal miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania will go into conference with the operators of these states at Mobile, Ala., in February in an endeavor to arrange an interstate agreement to take the place of the separate state wage scales that expire March 31. The demands the coal diggers will make, while not yet formulated, will be learned, be along the lines of those made two years ago, with the exception that a ten per cent. increase for soft coal miners will be asked and probably 20 per cent. for bituminous men who are paid by the day. The scale adopted in that conference will be the basis on which agreements in the bituminous fields in other parts of the country will be negotiated.

The anthracite men are asking for a 20 per cent. increase in wages, complete recognition of the union and a two years agreement. Information has reached Indianapolis that the hard coal operators may ask for a five year agreement, but the report lacks confirmation.

The anthracite men are almost unanimous for continuing at work after March 31, provided no agreement has been reached and there are prospects of making one. Most of those who opposed the non-suspension policy came from Indiana and Illinois fields, though two of the strongest speeches in favor of Mr. White's recommendation were made by Frank Harrington, president of the Illinois miners, and Frank J. Hayes, international vice president who also comes from Illinois.

A proposition to reduce the size of the international convention recommended by President White, provoked so much opposition that it was referred to the committee on constitution. A plan to change the representation from one delegate for every 100 members to one delegate for every 1,000 and thus reduce the size of the conventions from between 1,200 and 1,500 delegates to about 400, was recently defeated in a referendum vote. It was asserted that the vote had not been properly tabulated and President White urged the convention to adopt the new plan. Declarations were made on the floor of the convention that the proposed change was not in the interest of the "man with the pick" but was more for the benefit of the officers of the union, by giving them better control of a small body of men. The debate was lively and President White felt himself called upon to deliver a speech, disavowing any ulterior motive.

When the convention adjourned until tomorrow it was in the midst of a discussion over the alleged bribery case in the southwest territory where a former district secretary was accused of "selling out" the organization. Counter-suits in the case are now in the civil courts of Kansas. The committee on officers' reports approved the action taken by President White who has urged the delegates to take the matter into court for resolution. Several motions to change of the case in various ways were voted down. It will again be taken up tomorrow.

The scale committee of last night and considered the wage draft and other subjects brought to its attention by local unions. The committee will discard all the resolutions presented for action and will bring in a substitute covering all the things it will recommend for submission to the anthracite and bituminous coal operators.

The convention will not get through its work until next week and in consequence the soft coal conference at Mobile has been deferred until February 8. The sub-scale committee last night submitted to the full committee a draft of demands to be made upon the anthracite and bituminous operators. The anthracite demands were approved without changing anything in the list formulated at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., last fall, and the committee agreed upon a 10 per cent. increase for bituminous miners on the mine run basis and 20 per cent. advance for the man paid by the day in the same fields.

The demands were not made public but will be presented to the convention about the day before it is ready to adjourn.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS AWARDED LETTERS AT MASS MEETING

Prof. Zerfloss makes Presentation Speech—Five Seniors Given Gold Footballs

Seventeen Gridiron Warriors Receive Letters This Morning—Team Highly Praised by Superintendent for Loss for Good Work and for Clean Games.

This morning at a mass meeting in the Assembly hall seventeen members of the 1915 football squad of the High school were awarded their letters, having played in the required number of games. Five of the seven senior members of the squad were also awarded gold footballs as they have earned their letter in two consecutive seasons on the gridiron.

Mr. Zerfloss, superintendent of the schools made an interesting address before the presentation speech. He highly complimented the players in the manner in which they played in upholding the good name of the school, and also their ability for playing the game. He told of the improvement in athletics since the sports have come under the supervision of the school board.

The people of this town do not support football because of their love of the sport but because they appreciate the efforts of the students and also the clean game they put up and observe the rules. Several years ago the team was composed of eleven men picked merely for their popularity with their fellow students and out for their ability to play football. The game has become a means and not an end as it was in those days. Athletics in general have improved since the school authorities have taken charge. Better schedules have been made out and a winning team has been turned out every year which greatly aids in securing the support of the people as the public will not support a losing team.

Last year a squad of thirty five or forty men turned out for every practice and from this large number the best players were put on the varsity. One of the hardest schedules in the history of the school was played and Clearfield came out victorious in the majority of games.

The seniors who were awarded the gold footballs were Captain Patchin, Mitchell, Lynn, Phillips and West. Those awarded their C. were: Patchin, Mitchell, Lynn, Phillips, West, Rishel and H. Stewart, Bowes, Martin, Ready, Leslie Thompson, Shaw, Cochran, Torrence, Pooler, Jones and Austin.

G. W. JOHNSON JR. DIED AT AN EARLY HOUR THIS MORNING

Deceased was One of Clearfield's Most Popular and Best Known Young Men

Endocarditis Developed From Grippe and Was the Cause of His Death—Died in Allegheny General Hospital at Six O'clock This Morning.

The community was shocked this morning to hear of the untimely death of one of its most popular and best known young men in the person of George W. Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson of Second street. The deceased was taken sick about a week ago with the grippe while in Pittsburgh. His condition became more serious about Monday afternoon and on Tuesday evening he was taken to the Allegheny general hospital where he died this morning at six o'clock from endocarditis, which developed from the grippe.

Tuesday evening word came to his father to come to Pittsburgh and about a half hour later for the entire family to come as his condition was serious and the doctors had given up all hope of his recovery. His father and mother and sister Edna left yesterday morning on the 5:10 Pennsylvania train for Pittsburgh and arrived just a few hours before the young man died.

G. W. Johnson Jr., was born in Clearfield February 22, 1893 and was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Johnson of South Second street. Up until a few months ago he lived in Clearfield, being employed by his father in the plumbing business. Leaving Clearfield he went to Pittsburgh where he was employed by the Mechanic Supply company. The deceased is survived by his father and mother, three sisters, Edna and Margaret at home and Mrs. George Kendrick, of Sewickley, two brothers, Edgar, of New York city and Hursh, of Andros, Canada. Arrangements for the funeral services have not been completed.

PORK VERSUS FEDERAL ECONOMY

Congressional "pork" and economy in national expenditures are two utterly incompatible factors, and the party which makes itself responsible for or is even a passive participant in the passage of so mischievous a measure as the Shackleford "good roads" bill will find it extremely difficult to reconcile its actions with its professions. There may have been a time in the early history of the country when the development of its communications in vast unsettled areas was beyond the power and resources of the states and territories and when federal aid was justified. But that period has long since passed; and even if there were no other objection to a distribution of federal funds to the states for road building, the present moment is peculiarly inopportune for the addition of $25,000,000 or any other large sum to the federal budget for a project so redolent of the pork barrel.

The congress is facing the necessity of finding new sources of revenue to wipe out an existing deficit and to provide vast sums for the urgent needs of national defense. There is as yet no substantial agreement as to where the money is to come from. It has been agreed that the surrender of the duty on sugar was a blunder of the Democratic tariff revisers, accomplishing contributing to the embarrassment of the national finances and bringing a great southern industry to the brink of ruin. That blunder is to be retrieved, but all the other suggestions of the President for additional sources of revenue have been practically set aside as impracticable or inexpedient.

In the face of this situation it is worse than folly to propose the distribution of $25,000,000 to the states for "good roads." Aside from the fact that such a policy would be an invasion of the proper function of the states and would establish a precedent bound to return to plague the government, the distribution would be certain to be attended by all the worse abuses of the "pork" system. Happily the senate can be counted upon to send a bill of this character to the limbo of all scotched buncombe legislation. If the Democrats in the house imagine that they have gained anything by this bid to the cupidity of certain of the poorer states, they are likely to find out their mistake.

WINTER CARNIVAL OPENED TODAY IN ST. PAUL

Clayton, Ga., Jan. 27.—Will Brown, a negro convicted of wife murder, is to be hanged in the Rabun county jail here tomorrow, notwithstanding the fact that the trial judge, an member of the jury, the prosecuting attorney, and many leading citizens have asked that the death sentence be commuted to one of life imprisonment. Governor Harris, on the recommendation of the prison commission, has declined commutation on the ground that the trial court and the supreme court both refused a new trial and that the record of the convicted negro shows him dangerous.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Jan. 27.—Amid the booming of guns, the blowing of whistles, and the cheering of thousands of people, the Carnival of Winter Sports was inaugurated in St. Paul today for a ten days' engagement.

The city is gayly decorated and thousands of carnival costumes are to be seen. The city is gayly decorated and thousands of carnival costumes are to be seen. ## Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"Back of the troubled areas of Northern Africa, where war and agitation for war has been engendered anew by the contagion of the world-struggle, there lies a treeless country, inhabited by a people, the mask-ed Tuaregs, fascinating for the mystery and exclusiveness with which they have surrounded their life. These people, natives and rulers of the Middle Desert, are the allies of no one, neither of the Germanic Bund nor of the Entente, but wage a futile guerrilla warfare with all who invade the inhospitable Sahara sands of their domain. They are the buccaners of the trackless sand, forever at war with all civilization and its restraints," begins a war geography primer just issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington, which describes the people now warring with the African armies of Italy for the maintenance of their power to levy tribute upon the ancient trans-Saharan caravan routes.

"Masked Tuaregs are Berber nomads, a white desert people, whose country is probably the most inaccessible on earth. Even before Egyptian civilization began to leave coherent records of its history, the Tuaregs, or Berbers, were long established along Northern Africa. The great Arab invasion of the seventh century displaced them from their possessions upon the seacoast and drove them into the savage area of the interior desert, where, with their hands raised against all who come into their pathless country, they have maintained themselves through the intervening centuries, despite lack of water, sand-storms, and lack of farming land, requisitioning by force of arms from the Arabs and Egyptians, to the north and east, and from the blacks of the Sudan, in the south, such necessities and luxuries as their cheerless portion of mother earth can not supply them.

"There are five main tribes in the Tuareg confederation, and they inhabit the desert from Tuat to Timbuktu and from Fezzan to Zinder. Their homes are reared in the heart of arid wastes, where vast solitudes, unnatural heats, and unmarked distances shroud everything in uncanny mystery. They are masters of an area half that of the United States in extent. Of this 1,500,000 square miles of territory, scarcely 5,000 acres or less than the area of New York City is cultivated land. This scanty farmland is only maintained by an enduring struggle with the drifting sands. These fierce adventurers who have forced the great desolation to yield them a support number 300,000, or more, according to estimate; and they have made themselves feared by the natives from the Mediterranean to the jungles of Central Africa.

"The Tuaregs wear the end of their turban cloth drawn around the face, allowing nothing but the eyes to be seen. It is worn for the purpose of protecting the throat and tungs from the cutting blasts of fine desert sand, and, also, probably, as an element enhancing the mystery of their life, for they seldom or never remove these masks, whether roving the desert or visiting in the cities on the coast. Due to these cloths, they are called Mask-ed Tuaregs, while the Arabs call them 'People of the Veil.' The masks are dark blue and white, the former being worn by Tuareg nobles and the latter by the serfs and slaves.

"Some centers for trade, Tuareg towns, are situated in the Middle

Desert. These are Wargla, Tinbuktu, Ghat, Ghadames, Murzak and In-salah. However, the Tuareg has little cares for trade and industry. He is a fearless, enduring, hard-fighting adventurer along the merchandise trails that cross the desert. Two important trails leave Tripoli, on the coast, and traverse 3,000 miles of sands and barren wastes to the Sudan, where rich cargoes of skins, gold, ivory, and other interior African products are loaded upon camels and brought northward. Sometimes, a single caravan consists of thousands of camels and merchandise to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars. When passing through the Tuareg country, the leaders of such caravans have had to pay tribute to the chieftains by the way for safe escort or run the risk of losing all their goods.

"From Morocco to Tripoli, the relentless ferocity, the cunning, and the daring of the Tuareg is mingled in all the traditions unpleasant to the more peaceful natives along the coast cities and thrive upon the tribute they are able to exact. Still, the time is coming when the long caravan will no longer cross the desert, but the Sudan products will be carried by railway to Port Soudan or down the Congo River for European ports.

"The Tuaregs are of the purest Berber stock, the noble families unmixed with other blood, and, in their own language, they call themselves 'the noble people.' Nominally, they are Mohammedans, and some of their number compose the most intolerant and warlike sect in Islam, the Senusi-sect. Their hatred for the foreigner is greater even than that bred by their religion, and, so, they are more exclusive than ever were the Chinese or Japanese. Their social organization divides them into five classes, the nobles, the priests, the serfs, the cross-breeds and the slaves. All of these classes have this in common—they form together the Tuareg family, which holds itself superior to all the other peoples of the earth."

Ripening Strawberries and Blooming Flowers vs, BLIZZARDS

"Today while the North and West are freezing, while millions are suffering, while railroads are blocked by great snowdrifts and many schools are closed because of the weather, there are signs of spring throughout FLORIDA and the coast country, the trees are budding forth, the flowers are blooming, the birds are mating, and men and beast are free from the suffering of the death-dealing blizzards. In this climatic advantage the South has an asset worth billions in its material developments. This climate lessens the cost of living, lessens the cost of livestock raising, and makes possible outdoor work 12 months in the year. It gives to the fruit growers and the farmers productive power at least twice as great as that of their competitors in less favored regions.

To the young and the old; to the hustling, active man who wants to join in the development of this the most richly endowed country on the earth; to the middle-aged or aged man or woman who wants to spend the later years of life away from the blizzards and the killing cold of the North and West, the South bids a hearty welcome, with the assurance that the experience of the tens of thousand who have already come is a guarantee that millions of others could come and find health and happiness and prosperity here."

OKLAHOMA TO USE ARMORED CARS IN HUNTING BANDITS

Gov. Hove Sides Several Inches Higher Than Regular Automobiles

Okla. City, Jan. 27.—(By United Press.)—Jesse James and all that motley crew of picturesque co-bandits who have buried in scattered mounds throughout the wild west must be turning over and over in their graves since the 1913-14-15 revival of stagecoach and express robberies has developed along such scientific, efficient and up-to-date lines. County officers in Oklahoma are going to employ armored motor cars in hunting bank robbers and train bandits hereafter. There has been an unusual number of these holdups this winter and the offenders usually escaped because their horses were superior to those ridden by the officers. Orders have been placed with a local firm for a number of special steel bodies for motor chassis. The sides are several inches higher than those of the ordinary body and are to be pierced by rifle loopholes. Behind the windshield is to be a steel plate that can be raised or lowered.
